

2018 International Summer Studies Program

Incheon National University, South Korea

July 2nd to 27th, 2018

Changes taking place in world systems today, unique in both their scale and scope, will shape our global environment in ways that we cannot yet foresee. While many places and people in the world today enjoy more wealth, better health, and greater opportunity than ever before, novel skills and knowledge is needed to meet emerging challenges that pose a danger to the systems that underpin our prosperity. In a globalized world, balancing a desire for growth with the need to protect our future will require a truly global perspective.

The College of Law, Commerce, and Public Affairs at Incheon National University, South Korea, is pleased to invite applications for a 4-week International Summer School in July of 2018 focusing on this theme. Organized as part of the College's Global Excellence Program and hosted at the University's Songdo campus, participating students may select from a range of courses exploring the emerging challenges and opportunities in the global environment. 48 hours of in-class instruction will be supplemented by elective activities designed to provide greater insight into course-related issues as well as make students' time in South Korea a truly memorable experience. Members of INU's sister universities will be able to count the courses towards their degree at their home institution.

4 lecture tracks are available to students:

- Understanding Globalization
